NEVADA SENATORS COMING INTO OPEN

Newlands Bolts Party and Pittman Is Expected to Do the Same.

Confirming the exclusive information published in The Advertiser two weeks ago, comes a special cable to the afternoon paper from the Washington correspondent to the effect that Senator Newlands of Nevada is prepared to bolt his party on the free sugar question. The information published by this paper was to the effect that Senator Newlands was certain to oppose the free sugar clause of the Underwood bill and that Senator Pittman, the junior senator from that State, would probably follow the lead. The Advertiser has counted upon these two senators in taking the stand that the senate majority, when it comes to the final vote on sugar, will be found arrayed against the wrecking of the industry upon which Hawaii depends agriculturally.

During the last campaign in Nevada, Senator Pittman, then a candidate, in an interview with a present member of The Advertiser staff, stated that if the time came when he had to choose between the interests of his State and his loyalty to his party, over the sugar question, he would put Nevada first and Democracy second, believing that he would be serving his party best by preventing the wreck of the beet sugar industry.

Senator Pittman has not as yet made a public announcement of his stand, nor has Senator Walsh of Montana, the two needed now to block the presidential plan for free sugar in three years, but each is expected to step forward when the time comes to prevent the final passage of the Underwood bill in its present form.

The special cable yesterday to the Star-Bulletin says: "WASHINGTON, May 17.—Senator Francis G. Newlands of Nevada threatened to bolt the Democratic party on the question of free sugar and the Bourbon leaders are panic-stricken, as but one additional senator is necessary to kill the free-sugar feature of the Wilson-Underwood measure."

"Great pressure is being brought to bear on Senator Newlands by both interests, the leaders of the party endeavoring to hold him on the grounds of Bourbon loyalty and the opponents of free sugar on his duty to his constituents. Nevada having, within the past few years, derived considerably into the sugar beet industry."

"Opponents of free sugar are greatly elated over the action of Senator Newlands and believe they see the light ahead, which may mean that the proposition is doomed."

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(Special to The Advertiser)—The unsatisfactory state of relations between the United States and Mexico probably will soon induce the administration to take some definite attitude toward recognition of the Huerta government. The fact that several foreign states already have recognized Huerta, including several of the great powers, is said to be having an influence on the United States.

It is said that very soon a new ambassador will be appointed to succeed Henry Lane Wilson and that his credentials will be directed to Provisional President Huerta.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—(Special to The Advertiser)—The Chronicle will say tomorrow: "Three thousand troops, the Sixth Infantry and the Sixteenth Infantry, stationed at the Presidio of San Francisco, and the Twelfth Infantry, stationed at the Presidio of Monterey, comprising the Eighth Brigade, are under orders to move to the Hawaiian Islands within the coming week."

The men are being fully equipped for field service and the quartermaster department has not only started equipping them for foreign service, but has gone so far as to order thirty days' rations prepared for the men.

The brigade is under emergency orders and is prepared to move at an hour's notice.

The orders came to the Presidio troops as a complete surprise, and were made so secretly that, although the men are being given additional clothing and have been furnished with transportation for Hawaii on government transports, three of which will be ready to carry the soldiers to Hawaii, many of the men of the commands are as yet unaware that they are to leave soon for foreign duty.

The orders under which the military authorities are working come direct from the war department. They are simply to the effect that the brigade is to be placed under marching orders and furnished Hawaiian transportation.

Where they will be stationed on their arrival at Hawaii is not known.

LOCAL JAPANESE PRESS IS DECRYING TALK OF WAR

Plantation Japanese Are Alarmed Over the Situation.

An idea that the United States and Japan are on the brink of war is abroad among the plantation Japanese and has taken such hold upon some of the plantation laborers that those who are working on contract are dubious about the wisdom of keeping at work. "Why should we work on these contracts when it is not probable that there will ever be any crop to harvest?" they ask each other, and the answer is always: "Why?"

The Japanese papers have taken notice of this and have united to dispel the alarm among the Japanese and to persuade them to continue their contracts and to make new contracts as soon as their present ones run out.

"Even if the California Anti-Japanese Bill is signed by Governor Johnson, there is not the slightest chance of war at present between the United States and Japan," says the Nippon Jiji yesterday, editorially. "Those who are so worried at present over the report of possible conflict ought not to be alarmed, consequently."

"There are several reasons to count upon why war should not materialize," says Editor Soga.

"In the first place, the anti-Japanese legislation is merely a local agitation with every State beside California against it. The sentiment as expressed by the California lawmakers cannot be fairly said to be the sentiment of the United States at large. "Secondly, the present controversy between America and Japan is rather a controversy, or political nature, between a state Progressive administration and the national Democratic administration. For a third reason, all the prominent Americans are earnest in their denunciation of the attitude of the California legislature.

"And, more than these mentioned above, the United States is at present wholly unprepared for an immediate attack, while Japan is lacking funds for any bloody campaign. These reasons, taken into consideration, are sufficient to discredit all the jingo talk.

"War is always the last resort, when every possible endeavor for a solution fails. The American-Japanese situation is neither in such a critical stage nor is it hopeless of a peaceful solution. As long as President Wilson is empowered to enter into a treaty with any other nation he may choose and the senate, where such treaty is to be approved, remains under the control of the Democratic majority, the present difficulty may be easily readjusted.

"The latest report is to the effect that negotiations for a new treaty are now favorably progressing and we cannot, for a moment, believe that any crisis is now in hand.

"Therefore, it is our advice to the Japanese laborers to keep at their work steadily and maintain a cool-headed attitude. Those who are still worrying over the baseless rumors of war, had better withdraw themselves from the world and seek rest and ease in Heaven, where no anti-Japanese agitation is supposed to exist."

Brigadier General Frederick Funston, Whose Command Is to Be Greatly Strengthened

No official word has as yet reached local army headquarters of the coming to Honolulu next week of the three infantry regiments of the eighth brigade, news of which reached The Advertiser by wireless last night, a copy of the despatch being sent out to Brigadier General Funston, department command. Naturally General Funston was intensely interested in the fact that his command is to be so heavily increased.

"Our department has not been notified, although if the news The Advertiser has been correct we will probably hear in the morning," he said last night.

"Where will the three regiments be sent for station? Schofield Barracks?" he was asked.

"Well, of course, we will have to find out whether the regiments are really coming or not before we decide where to station them," he replied. "If the troops come, they will naturally have to go under canvas, but that will not necessarily mean sending them out to Leilehua. There is good camping ground close to town, at Fort De Russy or Fort Kamehameha."

Probable Transports.
The three transports referred to in the wireless despatch are probably the Thomas, which reaches San Francisco from Honolulu today, the Sheridan and the Buford. The Crook is also at San Francisco.

The eighth brigade is now under command of Brigadier General W. S. Schuyler, who was stationed here as colonel in command of the Fifth Cavalry. He has recently been serving in command of the troops guarding the Mexican frontier.
